

Cloud  Fabrics
DESIGNER SERIES

The Designer Series is meant to highlight artists and designers whose strong visual impact help define today's current handmade movement. These are people who's imagery typifies the diversity, charm and relevance of a culture brought about in part by the desire to move away from generic mass-produced commercialism, the impulse to get back to basics and to give meaning to the things we buy. This passionate enthusiasm brought momentum to local and worldwide communities, retailers, online marketplaces, the revitalization of the craft fair, and their supporters.

Cloud9 Fabrics, being an independent company with a background entrenched in the handmade community, sees a unique opportunity to bring our featured designers to a worldwide crafting industry that has yet to explore their talents in this fashion, while at the same time drawing new enthusiasts to the quilting and fabric community. The collections will be tight, stylish and multi-functional. They will deliver new aesthetics, colors and imagination to Cloud9's organic cotton selections. Best of all, they will be offered at a price point that most customers will embrace: the suggested retail price for these unique and inspiring collections will be under $12/yd.

As always, at the core, Cloud9 Fabrics continues to produce quality organic cotton goods. Our commitment to a healthier world with more wholesome alternatives drives our business. We offer eco-friendly options that appeal to a wide range of customers with a common thread of concern for our environment. The support of eco-friendly fabrics will only strengthen the demand for them. It is our hope that by broadening our own offerings, we will see a growing interest in global organic cotton farming and concern for the land as well the people who work it.

Cloud  Fabrics

Cloud9 Fabrics Inc.
PO Box 22
Cranford, NJ 07016
(908) 403-2461
www.cloud9fabrics.com

ON THE HORIZON...

HEATHER MOORE

Heather is a self-taught designer living in Cape Town, South Africa, creating products and designs sold under the label Skinny laMinx. Moore loves nothing more than making intricate paper cutouts which often form the basis of her textile designs which is woven and printed in her local area. She draws inspiration from Scandinavian mid-century modern and all things Japanese. Her upholstery-weight fabrics and houseware products can be found all over the world, from Helsinki to Hong Kong, USA to Australia. Heather regularly illustrates for Fairlady magazine and blogs for ELLE Decoration SA. Skinny laMinx was recently named a top 20 Fabric Resource on Design*Sponge. Her work has been featured in numerous international publications. Read more about Heather and her work on her blog at www.skinnylaminx.com.

Anticipated ship date April, 2011

JULIA ROTHMAN

Julia is a pattern designer and illustrator located in Brooklyn, NY. Her pattern designs can be seen on products for companies such as Urban Outfitters, Land of Nod, Galison and Garnet Hill. She has a line of letterpress stationery with Hello! Lucky and a line of wallpaper manufactured by Hygge & West. Her work adorns the new Tease for Two beauty product line for Victoria Secret. She is currently working with Chronicle Books to create her own line of products. Her illustrations can be found in The New York Times, The Washington Post, Design*Sponge and throughout the New York City's subway system as part of the MTA Arts for Transit program. For fun she writes a blog about art and design books called www.book-by-its-cover.com.

Anticipated ship date July, 2011

GENINNE D. ZLATKIS

Geninne is an artist/illustrator living in the beautiful colonial city of Queretaro in Mexico with her husband Manolo, their two very creative boys & a cute border collie puppy named Turbo. She was born in New York, but shortly after her parents began traveling around South America, where she lived in seven different countries and went to several English speaking schools. She studied architecture in Chile for a couple of years before graduating as a graphic artist in Mexico. She works in a variety of media, including watercolor, ink, and pencil. She sews, embroiders, loves to hand carve rubber stamps and sells prints of her watercolors at her online Etsy Shop geninne.etsy.com. She loves birds, flowers, and has been taking photos since she was 15 years old. Visit her blog at www.geninne.com

Anticipated ship date October, 2011